Tempted by Fire: EXTRACT

Hello. Hi, I mutter, trying to sidestep. He anticipates the movement and places himself in my way. Would you like to dance? he asks. I regard him warily, yet Im not able to stop gazing at his beautiful face, his blue eyes smouldering at me, making it pretty hard to refuse--but I still remember the fire. Im going to get some water, I say, trying to step away, again. Let me. No, thank you. Like Id let someone like him buy me a drink; its not like I havent heard of the date rape drug. Again, I try to side step him. Hey wait--I wont hurt you. OK, thats enough--I cant trust someone who says something like that, however gorgeous he might happen to be. I wrench my eyes away from his annoyingly captivating gaze. I need to go. This time he grabs my hand, stopping me in my tracks. The second his hand touches mine I stop wanting to leave. I look back into his eyes--suddenly finding his presence comforting, relaxing. I look down at our entwined hands, confused--what just happened? Lets dance, he says. Praise for M.D. Bowdens books! I continue to be impressed with authors who take on the paranormal genre and insert true originality into their novels. Count M.D. Bowden among them. -Jane Hoagland
